political uprisings religious significance and petroleum resources have combined to make the political life of the middle east crucially important to the rest of the world this book begins with an introduction to key aspects of middle eastern politics including the influences of tribalism kinship and the islamic faith the remaining chapters provide a closer look at six countries whose politics are likely to determine the region's future: egypt, israel, syria, saudi arabia, iraq, and iran. each chapter begins with an exploration of the country's history, then provides an overview of the major political institutions and groups that shape current events. particular attention is paid to the influence of elite groups and individuals. next, the discussion examines the context of the country's politics, political culture, political economy, and international influence. each chapter concludes with a look at the probable course of the country's politics over the next decade and beyond.

at a time when the middle east dominates media headlines more than ever and for reasons that become ever more heartbreaking, shifting sands brings together fifteen impassioned and informed voices to talk about a region with unlimited potential and yet which can feel as one writer puts it, as though the world around me is on fire. collecting together the thoughts and insights of writers who live or have deep roots in there, shifting sands takes a look at aspects of the middle east from the catastrophic long-term effects of the carving up of the region by the colonial powers after world war one to the hopes and struggles of the arab spring in relation to egypt, iran, and syria, and it asks questions such as: what is it like to be a writer in the middle east? what does the future hold and where do we go from here for all those who are wearied by the debates surrounding the middle east? often at best ill-informed and at worst defeatist propaganda, this intelligent, reasoned perspective on life in the middle east is a breath of fresh air.

the middle east is the center of three great ancient civilizations: egyptian, babylonian, and persian. it is also the seat of four monotheistic religions: judaism, zoroastrianism, christianity, and islam. because of the strategic location between the west and the east, the middle east since the early nineteenth century became the fulcrum of competition among and between great powers, including czarist russia. and it became intensified with the outbreak of the cold war, the end of world war ii between the two superpowers, the us and the soviet union, and with the creation of israel in 1948 and the discovery of oil. and it remains as such even after the collapse of the soviet union in 1991. the region became an epicenter of the arab-israeli conflict, islamic fundamentalism, islamic terrorism, irredentism, and sectarian wars. the region remains politically unstable and unpredictable given the fact it is run by autocratic regimes and dynastic monarchies, except for israel, a functioning democracy. so the purpose of this work is to introduce students and the general readers to this region's history: the founding of islam, its spread, and split; the ottoman empire and its fall; the western colonization and its end; and the emergence of independent arab states. the work also examines the domestic, regional, and international of nine countries: the frontline and the persian gulf states in the context of the arab-israeli conflict in terms of its impact and nonimpact over them, with the exception of turkey. an understanding of the region hopefully should help us deal with the vicissitudes and the complexities given our dependence on the region's oil and the sea shipping through the sues canal and the persian gulf.

the history of the middle east is long and complex. in the major muslim nations series, the term middle east refers to the region encompassing 23 localities countries and regions develop through complex interactions with others this striking volume highlights global interconnectedness seen through the prism of the middle east both global in and global out it delves into the region s scientific artistic economic political religious and intellectual formations and traces how they have taken shape through a dynamic set of encounters and exchanges written in short and accessible essays by prominent experts on the region global middle east covers topics including god rumi food film fashion music sports science and the flow of people goods and ideas the text explores social and political movements from human rights salafism and cosmopolitanism to radicalism and revolutions using the insights of global studies students will glean new perspectives about the region confidence building measures cbms were pioneered in europe at the height of the cold war the immediate goal of such measures is to create enough trust between parties in international conflicts to avoid mutually unfavourable sometimes dangerous outcomes due to misunderstandings the long term goal of cbms is to move the contending parties closer this edited volume discusses security policy and strategic policymaking in the middle east region due to its unique geopolitical geoeconomic and geostrategic features the middle east region has been confronted with challenging security issues combined with a lack of an efficient regional security regime this has led to the formation of a full fledged arms race this book draws together contributions from international experts to address the factors that have been contributing to the ongoing formation of an arms race in the middle east as well as the impact of this phenomenon on the regional and global security environment the book is organized in three sections the first section outlines the contemporary dynamics of the arms race in the middle east by focusing on its most recent dynamics and their implications for regional and international security the second section conducts systematic analysis of case studies of country specific drivers of the arms race the third and final section examines the role of external actors in the arms race evaluating both the responses of regional actors to external interventions as well as the implications of the arms race for extra regional countries
